DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent 5,815,370 to Sutton. In FIG. 1, Sutton teaches a semiconductor cooling device comprising a cold plate (22) for cooling a semiconductor element, a condenser (18), and a positive-displacement refrigerant pump (12; claim 5), said cold plate, condenser and refrigerant pump being fluid connected in series with each other to define a refrigerating cycle (see FIG. 1).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent 6,519,955 to Marsala, in view of U.S. Patent 6,587,336 to Chu et al. Marsala discloses applicant's basic inventive concept, a semiconductor cooling device comprising a cold plate (18, FIG. 1) for cooling a semiconductor element, a condenser (28, FIG. 1), a receiver tank (36, FIG.

1) and a refrigerant pump (12, FIG. 1), wherein said cold plate, condenser, receiver tank and refrigerant pump are in fluid connection in series with each other to define a refrigerating cycle (see FIG. 1), substantially as claimed with the exception of stating that the refrigerant pump is a centrifugal refrigerant pump. Chu shows the use of a centrifugal refrigerant pump (56, FIG. 2; col 5, line 42) to be old in the cooling art. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made from the teaching of Chu to modify the system of Marsala, by using a centrifugal pump as a refrigerant pump in order to provide enough circulation power for a miniature system needed to be cooled (col 5, lines 41-42).

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

U.S. Patent 6,942,018 to Goodson, Kenneth E. et al. teaches an electroosmotic microchannel cooling system.
